For the fall of 2017 our 2008 and 2007 teams will play in the 9v9 format. We will form teams of up to 15 players. In order to maximize development through training our teams will train at the same time though they will not always train together. Training at the same time gives coaches the benefit of either training the teams separately or grouping the players by ability and working on basic functional roles of specific positions. However, the main area of focus for development at this age is individual technical ability.

Please note that the exact number of teams we form will be based on the number of players who tryout and who accept positions on our teams.
